LET'S CONNECT ELECTRICAL

Hi I'm Simon, your local electrician. Originally from Bath, and after completing 3 years at Sussex University I moved to Bristol where I lived for 20 years. Following regular holidays to North Wales my wife & I decided to move away from the big city life & settle here in Dolwyddelan amongst the beautiful mountains of Snowdonia.

Although I grew up with the building trade in my life, with my grandfather as an electrician and my father as a general builder, I went to study Chemistry at university, then worked for 20 years in the plastics industry before deciding to return to my roots and following in my grandfather's footsteps by qualifying as an electrician.

I started my own business, Let's Connect Electrical, in Bristol in 2006 and successfully re-established the business here in North Wales over the past 4 years. I am also a member of NAPIT which allows me to carry out electrical work within domestic and commercial premises and being Part P qualified ensures my work conforms to Part P of the building regulations.

A typical week's work for me would be rewiring old cottages, installing new heating in churches, electric showers in bathrooms, emergency lighting in schools or fault finding when someone's lights fail. My work also covers fitting new consumer units, kitchen electrics, outdoor lighting and inspection & testing. I also work with a number of local builders, which involves designing and installing electrical installations based on architects plans.

... and when I'm not working? I enjoy going on walks with my wife Vicky and our dog Marti the Springer Spaniel. I am also a keen runner, often out running the forestry tracks and taking part in local events from the annual Râs y Cob, Bangor 10k and the Conwy half marathon.
