Denbigh Herald, August 1906 . . .

In the Vale of Lledr rain poured down incessantly for about ten hours. In Dolwyddelan there was a pitiable spectacle. Large fields of hay were completely submerged, and in the early hours, farmers were seen wading knee-deep in the hope of saving their hay which was still out. Parts of haystacks blown off, hurricane still high. Other crops as well as property have been considerably damaged, many sheep have perished.
