

which is for everyone. Luke's Gospel speaks to those who are poor or excluded and those in need of healing in their lives. It is a challenge to the church, and to all of us, to be more welcoming of the stranger and to ensure that all are included. This will be especially important in the coming years as Wales continues to strive to be a 'Nation of Sanctuary' for all those who are forced to leave their own country. St. Luke writes: "...he has scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts, he has put down the mighty from their thrones, and exalted the humble and meek; he has filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he has sent empty away."
